The Griffin two-speed hub will be on view at the Stanley Show with important improvements for the coming season. One of these we may not yet divulge, but we may say that the makers have overcome one great difficulty which has stood in the way of all two-speed hubs up to the present. The difficulty has been overcome in such a simple way that one wonders why no one has thought of it before, but that is always the way with a really good invention. More we may not say yet, but it adds greatly to the advantage of the two-speed gear and will be an important feature in the two speed which is growing so fast in popularity. Agents should make a special note to visit Messrs. Griffin and Stone's stand, and we may add in the meantime that those who will look out for our preliminary Show number will find some information therein of this important new development. The main design of the hub, will, of course, remain unchanged from that which has been so successful.
