Castrol scholarships

Under the auspices of the Institute of the Motor Industry, the Loughborough College of Technology provides a four-year residential course in management, costing, administration, etc., with the object of preparing some 30 students each year for an examination which confers exemption from the AMIMI examination.

To assist students who cannot afford the full fees of the course, a scholarship worth £150 per annum was donated in 1954 by C. C. Wakefield and Co. Ltd., the makers of Castrol. This company has now presented a second scholarship, of the same value as the first, to the Institute of the Motor Industry.
