

"... the Dandy's splendid performance on hills"

says Mr. R. W. Robin of Maldon, Essex.

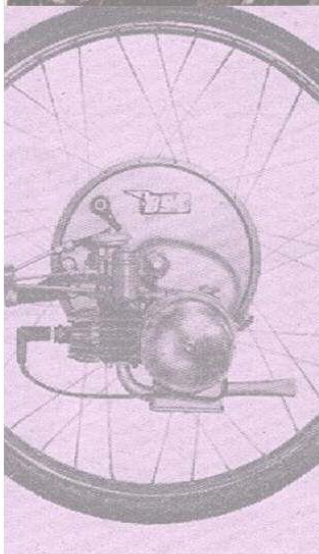

"Market Hill in my district will test any vehicle . . . buses when negotiating it cause a stream of traffic to gather behind them, all crawling. Now I really know carefree riding as I found out the other day when a bus and three cars started their funeral procession. I like to feel really safe on the road, so to give them plenty of room ahead of me I kept easing back the throttle. The performance really amazed me because I suddenly realised that I hardly had the throttle open at all, in fact was going so slowly that there was difficulty in keeping my balance, yet the engine pulled me up this 1 in 9 gradient with never a suggestion of a stall."
